

WILL TRAVEL EVER BE THE SAME AGAIN?

COVID-19 has severely impacted the aviation industry over the past two years. When the pandemic first hit, domestic and global travel immediately halted. People found themselves stuck in foreign countries and the transport of goods was stunted.

Today, the world is recovering. However, a recent YouGov survey across several countries has revealed that many passengers are still hesitant to travel.

Percentage of people for whom confusing health requirements stopped them from flying in 2021

Percentage of people who have been deterred from flying in 2022 due to confusing health requirements

Source: YouGov

Do people think governments worked together to facilitate ease of travel during COVID-19?

